

PLUCKY HEROINE SAVES FOUR LIVES

Clutching His Firing Arm, She Forces Intruder From House.

Chicago, February 23.—In a struggle with Robert Braun, in which a girl braved a magazine pistol and was beaten about the face until she was all but unconscious, the victim was a plucky heroine, who, by a remarkable display of courage, probably saved the lives of four children. The unequal fight occurred in the parlor of the home of George Eichner, on East Illinois Street, and Miss Emma Eichner, eighteen years old, was the heroine. It began the instant that Braun, who was nursing fancied wrongs against Eichner, kicked open the door early in the evening and asked to be admitted.

"No, I'd better come around tomorrow," said the girl.

"I'm here now, and I'm here to stay," exclaimed Braun, pulling the magazine pistol from his pocket and forcing his way into the hallway.

Miss Eichner seized his arms and with all her strength tried to push the intruder back. Together they struggled until reaching the parlor door, Braun noticed the four children.

Then he leveled his pistol at the children, who huddled under a davenport in a corner, and was about to fire. But she released her grip on his arm and with both hands forced the muzzle of the weapon toward the ceiling as Braun fired.

Unable to bring the pistol into play, Braun beat the girl until blood flowed from half a dozen wounds in her face. But she stubbornly clung to him. Again and again he fired, but to no purpose. Finally the gun clogged, and while he was examining it, Miss Eichner pushed him out of the front door and closed and locked it.

Braun then rushed to the tailor shop of an acquaintance, Joseph Sampson, shot him in the shoulder and in the hand, and was about to fire a third time when once more the gun clogged. He drew another weapon from his pocket, but it missed fire. While examining it he shot one of his own fingers off. He then abandoned his attack, visited a doctor's office, and was arrested while his injury was being treated. An examination will be held in jail pending an examination into his mental condition.

AGAIN FAILS TO RATIFY TREATY

Beveridge, of Indiana, spoke for four hours, but did not conclude. He announced that he would resume to-morrow.

Just before the Senate went into executive session Senator Burrows attempted for the second time today to have a time fixed, suggesting that it be before adjournment to-morrow. Senator Stone objected, and the Senate then adjourned.

With Congress within eight days of adjournment, and with its agenda crowded with important measures, including numerous appropriation bills, the Senate adjourned on anything but an agreeable state of mind. Ordinarily there would have been no objection to Mr. Beveridge's course in announcing that he would resume his speech to-morrow, but under the circumstances there were many manifestations of impatience. Some Senators who support Senator Lorimer went so far as to charge a filibuster to prevent a vote in the Lorimer case, but Mr. Beveridge and his friends resented this charge.

"I don't care a hang when we vote after I get through," Beveridge said to Senator Gallinger on the floor of the Senate just before adjournment.

All Hands Alike. Senator Borah duplicated the request of Mr. Burrows for a vote to-morrow on the Lorimer case, with a request for a vote on the election of Senators.

Senator Penrose stated his great desire to get up the post-office appropriation bill. He also declared that when Mr. Beveridge yielded the floor there was a general understanding that he would resume it again to-morrow.

In his remarks to-day Mr. Beveridge made somewhat extended reference to Senator Lorimer's speech of yesterday, and supplementing his remarks with warning Senators against being carried away by sympathy. He continued his analysis of the testimony in the case with a view of convincing the Senate that the Senator from Illinois had procured his election through bribery. He also charged that the Committee on Privileges and Elections had acted with undue haste and without proper deliberation upon the evidence in reporting its verdict. This allegation was made in connection with a sharp colloquy with Senator Penrose of New York. He taxed the New York Senator with having failed to read the testimony, and in addition intimated that the report, which originally was agreed to by the Committee on Privileges and Elections, was not the same document that ultimately was presented to the Senate in the Lorimer case.

Hearings Concluded. On the Canadian reciprocity agreement were concluded this afternoon.

It is generally believed that, owing to the introduction of President Taft's "to smother" it, the agreement will be kept by returning the McCall bill to the Senate "without recommendation."

In some quarters a report without recommendation would be regarded as more detrimental to the success for the measure than would an adverse report. Such a report, it is said, would be equivalent to an invitation to all Senators opposed to the Canadian reciprocity agreement to vote against it. Unless the Finance Committee or a majority thereof gives its approval to the President's program it is not believed possible that a vote can be reached upon it at the present session.

At the afternoon session of the committee to-day several witnesses appeared in opposition to the McCall bill. They included Edwin A. Merritt, a member of the New York Legislature, who said the farmers of the country were incensed at the thought that the Republican party should desire to withdraw the benefits of protection just when they were becoming able to take advantage of protection. He declared that should Republican Senators agree to the measure by abandoning their protective policies, and it would be a confession that they had been perpetrating a fraud upon the country for the past twenty-five or thirty years.

"Of course, we hear something of the big stick," exclaimed Mr. Merritt, "but we are not so much afraid of it now as we used to be, at least not in New York."

A. S. Farwell, of Orange, Texas, who is interested in the only Southern paper mill, told of making paper from the Southern long pine leaf, and declared that the infant industry is gaining to pay, but could not compete with free pulp wood or free paper.

Using His Legislative Club. [Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Washington, D. C., February 23.—It is reported around the Capitol to-day that the President is withholding his approval from the Appalachian and White Mountain forest reserve bill in order to influence votes for the Canadian reciprocity agreement. While nothing is being said at the White House about this intimation, it is a fact that the forest reserve measure has been lying on the President's desk for several days, and has neither been approved nor disapproved.

This fact has led certain New England Senators to believe that the Weeks bill is being held up for the purpose of certain members of the Senate to the New England States who are avowedly opposed to the agreement. It has not been the practice of President Taft heretofore to use his veto power over legislation in the case of one measure in the determination of win votes for another. This practice was common during the last administration, but has not been resorted to so far during the Taft regime, unless the present suspensions are well founded.

Lee of Protection Breaching. [Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Ottawa, Ontario, February 23.—Opposition to reciprocity developed a new feature in the Canadian House to-day when editorial objections from various parts of Canada were presented by Conservative members. One after another, they read opinions from publications condemning the agreement and supplementing them with resolutions of objection adopted by local fruit-raising and manufacturing organizations.

The debate on reciprocity was resumed by Dr. Clarke, a Western Liberal member and an advocate of free trade. From those who opposed reciprocity as a trade policy, the direction of free trade, Mr. Clarke wanted to know "why Canada should object to British trade policy under which Great Britain has prospered, and why the Dominion should adhere to a policy from which the United States was now breaking away." The lee of protection is cracking all over the world," he declared.

Healy Awarded Costs. [Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Dublin, February 23.—The election contest in the north division of Louth ended to-day by the court at Dundalk, which declared the election void and awarded Timothy Healy costs in his prosecution of charges of charge of general intimidation, and was found not to have been established.

The action was brought by Mr. Healy, who was ousted from the seat which he had held for eighteen years by Richard Hazleton, Redmondite. In the early stages Hazleton's attorneys consented to have the election declared void without offering a defense, but his evidence, which included that of support of charges of bribery, and the court decided to hear it. A new election will be necessary.

Shepard May Withdraw. [Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Albany, N. Y., February 23.—That there is a movement on foot to bring about the withdrawal of Edward M. Shepard as a candidate for United States Senator was intimated to-night by William Church Osborne, legal adviser to Governor Dix, and one of the managers of Mr. Shepard's campaign.

Rumors that Mr. Shepard had already written a letter announcing his withdrawal were current here during the day, but Mr. Osborne said he had not heard of it. To-night, messages from New York announced that Montgomery Hare, Mr. Shepard's manager there, denied that such a letter had been prepared. Mr. Hare was quoted, however, as making this statement: "Mind you, I neither say that Mr. Shepard will or will not withdraw. I only say that no decision has yet been taken, and that when it is taken it will be announced."

In view of to-day's rumors and Mr. Hare's statement, many legislators were led to believe that an announcement may be forthcoming shortly.

Coincident with the reports of the movement to select a compromise candidate, came the announcement to-night from Congressman William Sulzer, in the form of a letter to Assemblyman Cuyler, that he is willing that friends should "lend a helping hand" to obtain the election for him.

Mr. Sulzer points out that he now considers that the selection of a compromise candidate is the only way to break the deadlock.

Case Collapses. [Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

New York, February 23.—In a verdict not guilty, the State's first endeavor to make a criminal case out of the alleged corruption by the attempted purchase of legislators' votes to defeat the anti-race betting bills three years ago, collapsed late to-day. After an hour's deliberation, a jury in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court this afternoon acquitted Senator Frank J. Gardner, who was charged with offering ing a $10,000 bribe to former Senator Otto G. Foelker, who is now a Congressman, in the interest of the race track interests.

Gardner was on the stand to-day and denied again and again that he had attempted to bribe Foelker.

Blamed for Anarchy. [Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Japanese Government Attacked for Spread of Doctrines. Tokyo, February 23.—The spread of anarchistic doctrine in Japan was the basis of an attack upon the government in the Diet to-day. Members of the opposition introduced a resolution censuring the government for having permitted outlawry to reach a point where an attempt upon the life of the Emperor had been planned. The resolution was defeated by a large majority.

The debate revived the recent conspiracy which resulted in the execution of Denjiro Kotoku and his wife and ten other anarchists and the imprisonment of fourteen others. Premier Katsura outlined the efforts which were being made to prevent the growth of the movement.
